'There are some books that you spot and immediately curse under your breath - "Why didn't I think of that? What a great idea!" The city-pick series is one such idea. It is artlessly simple. The editors have scoured the literature and compiled a miscellany of observations by writers, famous and insignificant, which describe the beauty, the unique character and the essence of the chosen city. They've ranged widely and haven't restricted themselves to one language or the local culture. ...To read them is to fall in love with the cities through the eyes of people who understand how to capture a city's essence and put it into words' Bruce Elder, Sydney Morning Herald

'We love the city-pick books. They're right up our street!' Lonely Planet Magazine
